African Americans and the Local Church Robert H. King

This anthology presents major church situations faced by African Americans in the Lutheran church and society in general. Some noteworthy situations, concerns, experiences, problems, needs, and challenges encountered by African Americans are discussed by the writers. They also disclose some of the cultures, lifestyles, mores, characteristics, customs, values, and traditions with which many African Americans are identified and in which they find meaning, purpose, and satisfying fulfillment as human beings.
